

ROUTE 11, BURLINGTON, VERMONT.

MONDAY, MAY 9, 1887.

The New York Herald is booming Mr. Grady, of Georgia, for the second place on the Democratic ticket with Mr. Cleveland, but Senator Blackburn says that "Grady's well known protectionist views preclude his candidacy." Such a ticket, however, would fit the Democratic platform, which is worded so as to be interpreted to mean free trade in one section and protection in another.

A reporter on the Boston Herald felt that he had been injured by an article in the Advertiser referring to him as "deputy grand ink slinger" and brought a suit for libel, placing the damages at $5,000. He won the case and was awarded $1. Newspapers hereafter should remember that to call a man an "ink slinger" is a luxury costing $1 a "slinging."

Senator McDonald thinks that Mr. Cleveland will be re-nominated without much difficulty, but is fearful of the labor vote, which he says is to be "the disturbing feature." The more apparent it is that the laboring men of the country can no longer be deceived as to the dangerous effects of the free trade policy of the Democratic party the greater the anxiety of the party leaders.

The New York World declares that we are "spring ourselves by shutting Canada out of our markets." The World thinks that the people would be benefited by giving the Canadians control of our markets, either in fish or anything else it is remarkably stupid. It is only a few months since a Democratic candidate for Congress in Massachusetts was engaged in shooting holes through this fallacious theory of the World.

Our fishermen only desire that American vessels may have the same fair treatment in Canadian ports that Canadian vessels have in the ports of the United States. This is simple and just. Why not?—Boston Globe.

It is the "simplicity" question the fisher men are asking. But Senator Bayard seems determined to ignore it entirely in his eagerness to secure a commission, something that no one outside the State Department wants.

Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, when tackled by a reporter the other day, remarked that "only the enemies of men bring them to the front thus early and have them exposed to the fatal frost of public criticism," and then forthwith proceeded to launch Mr. Carlisle into the net of Presidential candidates as the "right man for the Democratic nomination." It is possible that Mr. Blackburn desires to see Mr. Carlisle a boom frost-bitten.

Senator Hearst thinks that Postmaster General Vilas is a dandy. He says all that he has to do is to go into Vilas' office, talk over what he wants for a few minutes and everything is decided to his entire satisfaction. Mr. Vilas has been turning Republican officials out of office at just about that rate while Mr. Cleveland looks calmly on with a large sized reform smile. There is no doubt that Mr. Vilas is a dandy after the peace seeker of two hearts and Mr. Cleveland's too for that matter.

The Democratic organs have unearthed another scheme by which the Republicans are to capture the Presidency, this time it being a carefully prepared raid on the youth. The postiveness with which the Democratic papers unfold the plans of the Republicans is really amusing. Of course the first thing the Republicans will do when the time comes to organize for the next campaign will be to take these Democratic editors into their confidence and give them a detailed plan of the campaign.

The Charleston News and Courier, a leading paper of the South, suggests that if Gen. Sheridan rides through the Shenandoah Valley the people pay "due honor" to his character by appointing "a committee to meet him at some peaceful spot, and turn a few barrels and dwelling houses and wheat fields and shoot down a few horses and cows in his presence." It is now in order for some newspaper to ask that all sectional feeling is a thing of the past in the South and that a "new" and loyal sentiment now exists in place of the "old spirit of hostility engendered by the war."

Speaking of Surveysor Beattie's endorsement of President Cleveland the New York World says:

Illas Beattie, who surveys the port of New York at a salary of $8,000 per year and the perquisites incident thereto, has been interviewed in Washington on the Presidential question. He thinks that Mr. Cleveland will be re-nominated. He is reasonable, certain that he will have the New York City election. In this view we think the surveyor is sustained by Collector Magone, Marshal McMahon, Postmaster Pearson, behaved gentlemen who owe money or less of their bread and butter to Mr. Cleveland's favor. Somebody ought to ask some of the dogs at the dog show if they would like to have their tails cut off. There would be about as much practical sense in his as in interviewing Federal office-holders about a second term for Cleveland.

The World's comparison is a good one. President Cleveland understands that every man he appoints to office is "solid" for the administration and he is using the patronage for all it is worth in spite of the numerous declarations to the contrary by his reform apologists. His conservatism in the Store-Benton case furnishes all the evidence necessary to show that he has a renomination always in view.

The testimony of two important witnesses was taken in the Graves trial Saturday, young McVeigh, who saw the shooting, and McFarland, the companion of Graves. McVeigh was subjected to a rigid cross-examination but it was found impossible to shake his testimony. McFarland's account of the shooting was contradictory of the story told by McVeigh and completely annihilates Graves' theory of self defense. Instead of both of the game wardens having loaded weapons in their hands when Graves did his brutal work, it appears from McFarland's testimony that neither of them had anything in their hands and the witness distinctly saw the handle of Hill's pistol in the case underneath his coat. As to the dog McFarland significantly admitted that he knew the "dog would track deer." The testimony of McFarland shows that no attempt was made on the part of the wardens to shoot the dog, but that Niles was endeavoring to take him from the wagon when the two fatal shots were fired. This testimony from the friend of Graves is very conclusive and the prisoner's counsel made an able attempt to find some weak points in it, but without success. The case will be continued to-day.

Notice to Water Takers.

Two of the pumps at the Water Works are out of repair, and it will be at least from one to two weeks before they can be put in condition to be used. In the meantime the balance of the machinery is being run to its full capacity, but owing to the great waste of water, it is impossible to supply the city with water in the usual manner. It is therefore necessary that the water be stored in the tanks and that the water be used in the most judicious manner. The water will be cut off at 10 o'clock, and it is requested that the water be used in the most judicious manner. C. F. BRAGG, Mayor.

was a fine one and weighed seventeen pounds. The fish are beginning to turn nish sport for our sportsmen.

The Executive Committee of the Maine

Esq. The funeral of the late George W.
Savage Esq. occurred Saturday afternoon from his residence on the Hampden road, and was largely attended by the friends very feeling manner. The bearers were J.

gant. The whole service was very im-

LINCOLN'S FOURTH OF JULY. In-vincibles are being sent out from Lincoln for the Fourth of July celebration which is to occur at this place this year, upon the occasion at in connection with the unveiling and presentation of the Stinchfield soldiers' monument and statue, the generous gift of Charles Stinchfield Esq., of Detroit, Michigan, to the town of his name. It is expected to be a most interesting affair. It is expected to be a most interesting affair. It is expected to be a most interesting affair.

The committee who are at work on the celebration for July Fourth met at the Bangor House last Saturday evening and voted to continue the solicitation of funds for three days longer. The amount already subscribed is not enough to warrant those engaged in the affair to announce that it will surely take place. There has not been a celebration in our city for a number of years and the friends propose to have a fine one this year for our people and many others who will be attracted by the sights to be seen here on the day of the celebration. The friends think they should have the patronage of the people at their entire disposal.

WHAT HE KNOWS ABOUT FARMING.
Mr. Charles York, who is showing people what he knows about farming on the "Cushman place," two miles out on Broadway, had his crew of men planting potatoes Saturday. Mr. York has accomplished wonders, by a very careful and economical system of management, upon this place. Acres of rough and uncultivated land have been put into level and rich fields of grain and grass. Most of his plowing and cultivating has been done with oxen, which were bought in the spring, worked until late in the fall, then turned to beef and sold in his city market.
He contracts by the year with several of the owners of our large estates for the drawing and hauling, and sells a liberal amount of commercial fertilizers. In addition to the sweet corn, he has contracted to plant to large corn, a large plot will be devoted to grain, squashes and vegetables.

Meeting of the Bangor Teachers.
The teachers held an interesting meeting last Saturday forenoon in the High School room. The attendance although good was hardly equal to that of former meetings, there being a smaller number of outsiders present. Mr. Hill presided over the meeting. Miss Snow, Miss Fox acting as secretary.

The programme for the meeting was somewhat changed from the order previously given. The first was a musical selection given by the Eugene Quartette, entitled "The Legend," which was enthusiastically received. A recitation in Magnetism and Electricity was next on the programme, given by the pupils in the fourth class in the High School. The entire occasion did credit to Mr. A. A. Walsh, their teacher, and to the pupils as well.
They seemed to be entirely conversant with the subjects, and performed the experiments with good success. Many of the batteries and part of the apparatus used were constructed by the scholars. The recitation occupied about an hour, at the close of which the teachers had the pleasure of listening to an interesting lecture by Rev.
George C. Cressy upon the following subject: "The Language We Speak." Below is a brief abstract of the lecture:

The languages of all people are either monosyllabic, as that of which the Chinese make use, the same word having several significations; agglutinative, or where roots are joined with roots to form words, a good example being the American Indian language; or inflectional as the Greek or Latin. Most of the languages that are best adapted to fine shades of meaning belong to this last class.

Mention was made of the change that the English language had undergone through the influence of the Celts, Romans, Angles, Saxons and Danes. By means of the traces of the dialects of these people, the English has become better adapted to fine shades of meaning than any other language, and at the same time is burdened with fewer grammatical changes. A good test of language is its adaptability to poetry, and it needs hardly be said the English stands without a peer.

The last part of the programme consisted of a discussion of the proper time and method of promotion. It was begun by Miss Titcomb, followed by Miss Robinson, Miss Blaisdell, Miss Elder and Miss Pease. The teachers in the higher grades all attested to the fact that pupils had come under their charge who would have done better work had they remained for a longer time in the grade below. Most of those who took part in the discussion, including Mr. Donigan of the committee, thought that pupils should not be promoted until their teachers were satisfied of their ability to take higher studies.

The teachers in all the grades during the year have had uniformity in the studies perused as much as possible, but the need of a supervisor who could give his entire time to the interests of the schools is apparent in Bangor.

Bishop and other visitors.
The Bishop expressed his great pleasure in this his first visit to this conference.
Minutes of previous sessions were read, after which the conference adjourned without date, after the reading of the appointments Sunday evening.

SUNDAY SERVICES.
The day dawned bright and beautiful and visitors poured in from surrounding towns. Nearly all the city pulpits were supplied. Dr. Kynett supplied the pulpit of Dr. Field in the morning. The Bishop preached at the First M. E. Church, a deep and instructive discourse from the text of Romans 8, 10 and 11.

A large chorus choir led the singing, and every seat and nearly all the standing room was taken. At the close of the sermon, the benediction was pronounced.
F. L. Brooks, H. W. Norton, N.
LaMarsh, J. D. Prynson.
The conference forenoon feast was led by Rev. F. H. Osgood. Hundreds took part in the service, and there were 150 testimonies.

Dr. Kynett preached at 2:30 a most eloquent discourse, the audience being larger even than in the morning. M. C. Prescott read the Scriptures and C. B. Dunn offered prayer. A second ordination followed the afternoon sermon and the following persons were ordained elders: R. L. Norton, Jewell presided. Mrs. Silmon read the Scriptures and Mrs. Beal offered prayer.

The Apollo Quartette was present and dis-coursed most excellent music. Their selections were: "O God, Thou Art my God," "Come unto Me," "Sweet Bye and Bye." Mrs. Jewell read her annual report which showed a great advance in the work during the past year. Mrs. S. L. Baldwin, Lewiston, read the report of the missionary
